That was Watchers. I know... I anticipated the movie being great and it was a SORE disappointment.

I can't remember most of the titles, but loved the one with the golden retriever!!! Too bad the movie based on that book was so terrible..)

I love Dean Koontz. I think I've read every book he's written, but I think my favorite will always be the first one I read – "Watchers".

Okay, I understand then. But being a huge Dean Koonz and Steven King fan, obviously I don't need the plot to be believable!!! <G>

Just goes to show difference in taste. A book has to be believable to me, and that one just wasn't! Surviving a fall out of a helicopter from that height! Really..... I like the book suggestions, though.
I read at night before going to bed as it gets

my mind off everything and I sleep better, so I go through books like crazy and have this awful thing that I have to finish a book, no matter how bad it is (One exception, to this day I have NEVER finished Alice in Wonderland—have started it a few times). I like a good mystery, medical novels, and Clive Cussler! I loved James Michener—nobody writes like him—I miss him!

DH read Angels & Demons
and he kept saying, "you HAVE to read this one!" I haven't yet, but I will. He really liked it.
