

Re: and I thought I had seen it all

Re: and I thought I had seen it all

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.transcription/2006-06/msg00327.html>

- From: Anne Vasquez <annevasquez@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Wed, 07 Jun 2006 16:28:09 GMT
-

I saw that; almost cried. I never cared too much for David Lee Roth, but that was mostly due to his attitude, not musical talent. Once upon a time, he had quite a voice, but this was just sad. It appeared that he was straining even to hit midrange notes. I hope he fades quietly back into the woodwork after this.

Anne

Ed Chait wrote:

I was watching the Tonight Show this evening and it appears that David Lee Roth is now trying to make a comeback and reinvent himself by doing country western renditions of Van Halen songs.

He had a band of about 8 musicians (who looked completely mortified) and performed the song "Jump."

Not only was it completely pathetic, but it was horrible, just horrible.

I think he should have stuck with his original plan to become a paramedic.

ed