My guys know they aren't allowed to go in the house, so the poor things were walking around in agony. Newspapers, pads, litter boxes (yeah like THAT would work-- like Rae said they CLEAN them! gross)... none of that would work, I'd have to train them to do that and hopefully, the outdoors not being an option will not be something common.

Today is humid, feels like Florida!!

No more rain predicted until tonight :D

It's gorgeous to see today-- the grass is deep green, the water glistening on the leaves, the sun reflected in the renewal that rain seems to bring. Thankfully, I was only surrounded by small creeks and we fared just fine.

Training pads or newspaper never worked for Zandy? She would go anywhere but! Seemed as if she purposely avoided them! Seems like a good theory, but Zandy never figured that out. Or she figured she shouldn't soil what placed on the floor--better to avoid things that might be valuable!

Potty training pads.

We are finally drying up a bit, though we have not had nearly the rain

you guys have had.
