

Re: If you still think we can win in Iraq..

Re: If you still think we can win in Iraq..

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.transcription/2006-11/msg00208.html>

- From: RaeMorrill <RaeMorrill@xxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sat, 04 Nov 2006 11:42:37 GMT
-

This is unconscienable. Just beyond belief. I believe I've heard families were collecting the money themselves to buy their boys the gear (bullet proof vests or whatever it was). Unbelievable. Send them into harm's way without the protective gear that is available.

Susan Mitchell wrote:

The one thing that has infuriated me more than anything is the armored personnel carriers (humvee type and others) that one company has ready to send over there that can survive the artillery that hits and kills are troops. The Dept. of Army will not buy them as they want to use the private contractor of Bush's choice. However, that contractor (no it is not Halliburton) cannot build them and have them ready for another 5-7 YEARS! Too bad, they won't use or buy the ones that are already built and ready to go. They want this contractor to get the job! Support our troops my ass! Pelosi was having a fit about this -- I think this was on the news (very, very briefly in Sept or October) I mean I saw it just once! And of course more on the blogs.