

Re: OT – Washer and dryer combos

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.transcription/2007-02/msg00829.html>

- From: haggis <haggis58@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sun, 25 Feb 2007 03:20:30 -0500
-

The time factor is an issue, but I like that so many models seem to come in a 110V option. I'm trying to make my old pair last another year or two, at which time I might want to consider something smaller and stacked (even if my daughter doesn't cooperate and fly the nest by then).

Now, if I could just learn to cook for fewer than 10 people at a time. . .

jeanne

Melinda Meahan – take out TRASH to reply wrote:

I knew I had seen some bad scoop on them:

http://www.consumersearch.com/www/house_and_home/washer-dryers/index.html

Of course, if you can live with it, it would be okay.

RaeMorrill wrote:

Has anyone had any experience with these? It sounds like a good idea to save time and space. No more forgetting to toss the clothes in the dryer. This time of year I often just air dry with wood stove going, helps humidify and saves electricity, but sometimes you just want to start them and go.