

Re: OT: Living a virtual life

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.transcription/2007-02/msg00920.html>

- From: "motach" <motach99@xxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: 26 Feb 2007 18:55:08 -0800
-

I see a "ripped from the headlines" story line for Law & Order.

Some people just need to take a vacation in the real world.

On Feb 26, 10:39 am, JulieW8 <seemy...@xxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

<http://www.latimes.com/entertainment/news/la-fi-second22feb22.1.72920...>

Crimoney – I thought I spent too much time on the internet. I simply cannot imagine spending real money for virtual "real estate" and goods, nor can I imagine getting so worked up over a virtual world that I'd go out and blow up virtual locations. Although I suppose if someone is going to get that upset over things, I'd rather they do it in a virtual existence than the real one! Still – how long will it be before someone decides anyone who would commit acts of violence in a virtual world might represent an actual threat in the real world?

Maybe there are some virtual psychiatrists who can help these people.

~~~~~*****~~~~~*****~~~~~*****

To send me e-mail, use juli...@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx