The chief complaint is "girth pain." I understand what he's trying to say, but can your "girth" really hurt you? Wouldn't it be abdominal pain, unless you were complaining about your joints hurting you because of your weight?
lol

Of course, this is what they want and this is what they get. But I'd like to know if there's another way to look at this that could make sense and I'm just missing it.
