You guys looked like you had a great time!! I'm so happy that you got to see him :)

My son is finally coming home for a three week leave (I am so excited)!! He's been in Japan now since June of 2005 and other than a couple of pics here and there, I haven't seen him and I'm afraid I may not even know him any more. He just turned 21 when he left and now he's 23. I just finished grocery shopping for what I remember to be a bottomless pit and now I'm wondering if he even likes this stuff anymore. Gosh I'm so nervous!!

How nice that he's going to home again.

I don't think he's going to have changed all that much. Better stock up:).

And if he's anything like mine, he'll be craving some of Mom's cooking!! I'm so happy for you, Maureen. It's hard when they're gone for so long.

I'm glad you've gotten to spend some time with your son as well, Ed! There's nothing better than spending time on the water, IMO. And if you get fresh fish out of the deal, that's just a bonus!

Now, I'm still waiting to get my mitts on my new grandbaby. My grandma and 2 aunts are driving down to Kentucky to see him this weekend. Grump. Everybody's going to get to hold him before I do. It's a loooooong time till Christmas! <G>
