Crap! I would absolutely NOT give it to my daughter until they had some long–term data on it. This is way too scary. They give it at a young developing age. Who the heck knows how this will affect them. How about a vaccine for boys, you know the carriers? It is always let's test it on the females bodies, let's screw them up first! Sorry, but I find it amazing! If this was a vaccine to prevent boys from passing HPV to females the damn thing would be tested for 20 years before released in case it messed up the jewels!

Good heavens, Sue. We totally agree on something. All of the planets must be aligned just right...
