For example, do you think that the government, who deeply subsidizes public colleges, should pay students' tuition at Stanford, Harvard, etc. because some kids get to go there? I hope not.

Yes, I do. But I also know many kids who can't afford Stanford and Harvard often go on scholarship. Harvard just subsidized tuitions to the tune of something like $22 million. The commentator then indicated Harvard has so many billions in gifted monies that the fact that they charge tuition at all is outrageous.

And are you saying because someone is a senator and I'm a not, they are more DESERVING of healthcare? I surely hope not. And if my government can pay for a senator, then, yeah, why not me?
