((Still, I remain convinced that there are better ways to spend one's time than in becoming incensed about what everyone else is, or isn't doing, and imagining it's somehow directly affecting me ... at least, not when I don't really know squat when it comes to the facts. ))

Lordy, lordy, it must be pure heaven, Chuck, to be as perfect as you are. Of course, having read your many posts in the past, I do expect nothing less from you. The fact that I, as a taxpayer, will be helping to bail out people in foreclosure does directly affect me.

I bow to your opinion, but please allow me to have mine, too. In the case of my post, I was pissed off with people getting into debt and expecting the rest of us to bail them out. It was NOT the fact that the owners of the makeover house got it as a gift.

Judity, (who, you may have noticed, things (sic) folks should just get the gist of a conversational post before acting all high and mighty. Just a thought!).
