

Re: POT – The Election

---

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med.transcription/2008-10/msg00171.html>

---

- From: Judity <Judity01@xxxxxxx>
  - Date: Fri, 10 Oct 2008 09:43:30 -0700 (PDT)
-

((That's not possible. My car's fog lights will only come on with the headlights on. ))

Bob, maybe your car is trying to tell you something. (smiling)

((as a lifelong Republican until very recent years--well I did vote for the Libertarian Party several years before getting up the courage to vote Democratic for Gore. I still hope my father is not spinning in his grave))

Barb, the same thought came to me the other day. My father was a lifelong, New England, frugal Republican, and I followed his political lead for decades. Only when Ross Perot came on the scene did I question the Republican beliefs.

I still don't agree with all of either the Republican or Democrat ideas. This year, though, I'm ignoring the party and voting for the man, Senator Obama, I think will make a better, more thoughtful President.

To continue the automobile thread, the other day, I heard a great definition of McCain: A Model T with a crank engine!

.