

Cold-Induced Raynaud's Disease & LASIK

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med/2004-08/0650.html>

---

From: David Halpern (photonicbandgap_at_earthlink.net)

Date: 08/06/04

Date: 6 Aug 2004 16:53:49 -0700

Would cold-induced Raynaud's be a contraindication for undergoing LASIK?

I know common Raynaud's is a warning sign but mine was caused by repeated freezings of my hands on walks to school.

I usually seem to heal pretty good but are corneas restricted to a different process for vaso-collagen healing?

Thanks all in advance,

David Halpern