Aha. So that's what "gomorrahmy" is. I'm amazed they haven't outlawed it. Although probably if you think too much outside the box in the US, the day is coming that the NSA will identify you, and the Department of Fatherland Security will come and detain you indefinitely without trial, and without bothering to tell anybody where you went. And you'll be lucky if, while you're "disappeared," Grampa Rumsfeld doesn't order you ducked like a witch being put to the torture, until you confess to whatever imaginary terristic thought-crimes you're charged with.

Holy crap, Batman. I'm not too scared that terrorists are going to fly a jet into my house or office, but I really, really don't like what my homeland has become. And while I thought Michelle Moore was out to lunch on the subject of guns, his last book is full of some pretty good points, I have to admit. Dude, where's my country???
