

Re: clinton surgery question

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med/2004-09/2099.html>

---

From: Happy Dog (happydog_at_sympatico.ca)

Date: 09/25/04

Date: Fri, 24 Sep 2004 20:08:35 -0400

"MU" <munospam@fastmail.fm> wrote>> Grade one, maybe. Idiot Mu. You claimed that you know what doesn't happen >> in the afterlife WRT reqard and punishment. You claim to know this >> through >> god's teachings etc.

>

> I claim to know that I learned that I do not know? Nope, never said that > Unhappy TrollPuppy.

You said that reward and punishment are not meted out in the afterlife. (I said this was an assumption and you said it was incorrect.)

>

>> Then you claim that you have no real knowledge or any >> need for it. And you also claim to be a skeptic. This is patently >> hallucinatory.

>

> Maybe to you. Makes perfect sense and works quite well for me. One can be > skeptical without the need to know; you confuse "desire to know" with need > to know. I desire to know, and will, someday but I have no need to know > until then. God's Plan.

A skeptic who doesn't need to ask questions? How cute.

>

>>>> You claim to be a skeptic but >>>> feel that "God's teachings" are axiomatic.

>>>

>>> I never said that. You made that up out of thin air.

>

>> Nope. You can't explain how god's teachings are transmitted and how you >> arrive at a particular viewpoint when most of the rest of the world has a >> different one.

>

> Sure I can. As to what the rest of the world knows is of little concern to > me.

So much for skepticism. Anyone with a skeptical bone would ask why Christian adherents are in the minority. But you just don't care to know.

>
>> All that adds up to a POV which requires god's teachings to >> be self-evident to any right-thinking individual. Like you, no?
>
> God lets me know what He feels I need to know. Faith not right thinking > opens that channel of knowledge.

OK. Self evident to any faithful person. So why do people of different faiths get different messages? How do you know that yours is true?

>>>>So when I ask you to show us, in >>>> detail, exactly what the no-shit teachings are that eclipse all the >>>> other >>>> no-shit teachings of other gods, you'll put it in a succinct and >>>> credible >>>> form. Not.
>>>
>>> You never asked me for any such detail. Drink less when you post.
>>
>> "When I ask you" is in the present. The question is implied.
>
> I don't know what a "no shit" teaching is. Try again. No shit, please do.

Yes you do mu mu. It's the real version of universal reality that the faithful, oops, Christian faithful, understand. But, like I said, can't explain in a rational way to skeptics or non-believers. Just like the other faithful...

>>> See above regarding drinking.
>>
>> Gee MU, you've really seized on this particular insult. Projecting >> perhaps?
>
> Projecting what? You post like you are imbibed, that's all.

Occasionally. Better than drunk on Jesus.

le mo