

Re: Campaign launched against dietary supplements

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med/2005-01/1945.html>

From: Mark Probert (Probert_at_lumbercartel.com)

Date: 01/24/05

Date: Mon, 24 Jan 2005 10:05:13 -0500

"Anth" <anon@anon.com> wrote in message
news:41f1a349$0$103$65c69314@mercury.nildram.net...
> *Mark cmon with your 'proven' bullshit you and I know it's something for you > to argue over.
> There's no therapy in mainstream therapy that has shown this kind of success > with pancreatic cancer.*

Transplant.

> If you get pancreatic cancer you will think differently.

I have had family die from it.

> o.k. I'll rephrase it, you show me a proven therapy which works for > pancreatic cancer.

Transplant.

> Anth
>
> *"Mark Probert" <Mark Probert@lumbercartel.com> wrote in message > news:41a1d.8339$Vq.2177@fe08.lga...
> >
> > "Anth" <anon@anon.com> wrote in message
> > news:41f10e36$0$115$65c69314@mercury.nildram.net...
> > > "Mark Probert" <Mark Probert@lumbercartel.com> wrote in message > > > news:kfWHd.8279$gz5.5882@fe08.lga...
> > > > Yes, delaying a proven and effective treatment is an excellent idea.
> > > > Try
> > > > Laetrile if you are ever diagnosed with pancreatic cancer.
> > > >
> > > > Pancreatic cancer is one of the deadliest of the cancers rendering*

sci.med: Re: Campaign launched against dietary supplements > > modern > >> >> medicine useless and making an alternate system of believes more > >> >> valuable.

> >> >
> >> > There is no alternative treatment that will affect pancreatic cancer.
> >>
> >> Really tell us what you know?
> >
> > I know that there is no alternative treatment that will affect pancreatic > > cancer.
> >
> > If you know of one that has been proven, please post it for the good of > > all > > mankind.
> >
> >
> >
>
>