

Re: Prolonged Menstrual Period

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med/2005-02/0278.html>

From: REP (rep_at_inanna.com)

Date: 02/05/05

Date: Fri, 04 Feb 2005 20:42:39 -0800

In article <t3YMd.41658$NC6.34354@newsread1.mlpsca01.us.to.verio.net>, "tech27" <tech27@mail.anonymizer.com> wrote:

- > Notwithstanding consulting with a medical professional, would like any
- > insights into the following.
- >
- > Female, 47, otherwise in good health, experiences prolonged menstrual
- > spotting (daily for the last 30+ days).
- >
- > Previously biopsy for indications of cancer negative. Uterine lining normal,
- > not taking any medications. History of heavy periods. Childbirth history 1
- > miscarriage with D&C, 2 natural childbirths and 1 C section (which delivered
- > a Trisomy 18 child), 1 miscarriage without D&C (in that order).
- >
- > Any information or links to sources greatly appreciated.

Given her age, she is probably experiencing the joys of perimenopause/menopause. It could also be dysfunctional uterine bleeding or a host of other things. She can only be diagnosed after being examined by a doctor.

--

"Did Father shoot him? I will eat Grandfather for dinner."
- Helen Keller, on learning of the death of her grandfather