

Re: What happened in the ER?

---

Source: <http://sci.tech--archive.net/Archive/sci.med/2005-12/msg00112.html>

---

- From: REP <rep@xxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Fri, 09 Dec 2005 10:47:46 GMT
-

In article <1134111528.964677.232990@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>, "just Ed" <just_ed53spam@xxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

- > I didn't see it, but my wife was shown that the monitor
- > had recorded a BP of 90/25 !?! during the episode.
- >
- > I had not felt unusually bad considering the circumstance.
- > Was this a valid reading?
- > a reaction to morphine? –how unusual is that?
- > how close did I get to dying?

This is just a guess from a naturally hypOtensive person (my normal BP is around 90/40) is that you might have been in shock, and that you weren't very close to death. I'm sure one of the people who know what they're talking about will be along soon to correct my guess.

—
"Did Father shoot him? I will eat Grandfather for dinner."
– Helen Keller, on learning of the death of her grandfather
.

---

- Follow-Ups:
  - ◆ Re: What happened in the ER?
    - ◇ From: just Ed
- References:
  - ◆ What happened in the ER?
    - ◇ From: just Ed
- Prev by Date: Number of Plastic Surgeries Rises! Can this trend be stopped?
- Next by Date: Re: What happened in the ER?
- Previous by thread: What happened in the ER?
- Next by thread: Re: What happened in the ER?
- Index(es):
  - ◆ Date
  - ◆ Thread