

Re: Psychiatrists

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.med/2006-09/msg00073.html>

- From: "Dubs" <dvdmaxwell@xxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: 15 Sep 2006 07:47:05 -0700
-

From the ratings the users' are giving out here, it seems obvious that they are quite ignorant of what goes on in the medical system. Or they are prejudiced or in denial, or choose sides irregardless of the truth.

Dubs wrote:

Obviously, there are many, many rather excellent psychiatrists practicing in Europe, Canada, and the United States. But having witnessed a good friend's experiences with the mental-health establishment, I am certain that there are great numbers of sloppy, mean-spirited psychiatrists, mental-health nurses, and social workers making good livings while subtly abusing their power and their patients.

Therefore, it is imperative that you, the patient, obtain access to your medical records so that you can make written additions that both refute and correct the doctors' mistakes and their slanderous attempts to justify the fact that they incarcerated you. Sometimes they even get mixed up about their patients' identities and then report one patient's problems (and crimes?) as another's. Suddenly, and without your knowledge, you are accused of purposely getting crazed, of drinking pints of mouthwash on Christmas day.

And don't kid yourself, except for top top-secret government intelligence, no written or electronic record is really confidential.

<http://medicine.armed.us>