

Re: OptisWorks

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.optics/2005-10/msg00173.html>

- From: "Michael" <mbush@xx>
 - Date: Wed, 19 Oct 2005 21:41:58 GMT
-

Optisworks is an interesting program, but they're going to have to work on their pricing before they have any hopes of replacing Zemax—at $17k to $30k per seat for Optisworks, the boys at Zemax can sleep soundly

"Alexander Dräbenstedt" <alexspamander@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message news:dj6dmq\$2hnp\$1@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

- > Hello all,
- >
- > Can someone here share his experiences or opinions about the OptisWorks
- > program? http://www.optis-world.com/G_O.asp?soft_id=3
- > It is an extension to Solidworks and advertised to be a full featured
- > optics design program. Its advantage is the full integration of optical
- > elements in the mechanical design.
- > Is it possible that this program, rather unknown in the community of
- > optics designers can replace a special-purpose program like Zemax and the
- > like?
- >
- > Thanks, Alexander
- >

-
- References:
 - ◆ OptisWorks
 - ◇ From: Alexander Dräbenstedt

- Prev by Date: OptisWorks
- Next by Date: OT: bi/trifocal glasses
- Previous by thread: OptisWorks
- Next by thread: Re: OptisWorks
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread