

Re: Experimental disproof of the theory of Relativity

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.physics.relativity/2004-06/4753.html>

From: Cozmo Man (cozmologist_at_scientist.com)

Date: 06/24/04

Date: Thu, 24 Jun 2004 15:36:55 -0700

Ballisticus wrote:

> On Wed, 23 Jun 2004 20:45:19 -0700, "Cozmo Man"

> <cozmologist@scientist.com> wrote:

>

>> Ballisticus wrote:

>>> On Wed, 23 Jun 2004 08:58:08 -0500, Tom Roberts

>>> <tjroberts@lucent.com> wrote:

>>>>

>>>> Ballisticus wrote:

>>>>> I know [OWLS] is c wrt its source.

>>>>>

>>>>> That method of "doing physics" went out with Aristotle. It does >>>>> not work. The ONLY way that has been found to work is to perform >>>>> experiments and apply the scientific method to their results.

>>>>

>>>> Even your god, Einstein says light moves at 'c' relative to its >>>> source.

>>>>

>>>>

>>>>

>> You are mistaken. You could only say this if you did not follow the >> point that Einstein makes.

>>

>>

> Einstein correctly believed that an observer moving with a light > source would always measure the velocity of its light to be c. Do > you still want to argue?

No, I do not want to argue. Presenting an argument presumes that the other is capable of thought, something that seems to be missing in you.