

Re: Experimental disproof of the theory of Relativity

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.physics.relativity/2004-06/4765.html>

From: Ballisticus (B_at_..(Ballisticus))

Date: 06/24/04

Date: Thu, 24 Jun 2004 23:27:18 GMT

On Thu, 24 Jun 2004 15:36:55 -0700, "Cozmo Man" <cozmologist@scientist.com> wrote:

>Ballisticus wrote:

>> On Wed, 23 Jun 2004 20:45:19 -0700, "Cozmo Man"

>> <cozmologist@scientist.com> wrote:

>>

>>> Ballisticus wrote:

>>>> On Wed, 23 Jun 2004 08:58:08 -0500, Tom Roberts

>>>> <tjroberts@lucent.com> wrote:

>>>>

>>>>> Ballisticus wrote:

>>>>>> I know [OWLS] is c wrt its source.

>>>>>>

>>>>>> That method of "doing physics" went out with Aristotle. It does >>>>>> not work. The ONLY way that has been found to work is to perform >>>>>> experiments and apply the scientific method to their results.

>>>>>>

>>>>>> Even your god, Einstein says light moves at 'c' relative to its >>>>>> source.

>>>>>>

>>>>>>

>>>>>> You are mistaken. You could only say this if you did not follow the >>>>>> point that Einstein makes.

>>>>>>

>>>>>>

>>>>>> Einstein correctly believed that an observer moving with a light >>>>>> source would always measure the velocity of its light to be c. Do >>>>>> you still want to argue?

>>>>>>

>>>>>> No, I do not want to argue. Presenting an argument presumes that the >>>>>> other is capable of thought, something that seems to be missing in >>>>>> you.

>>>>>>

Uh Uh! Varney alert!