

Re: Article: Scientists get their own Google

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.physics.relativity/2004-12/0349.html>

From: Tom Roberts (tjroberts_at_lucent.com)

Date: 11/22/04

Date: Mon, 22 Nov 2004 16:48:13 -0600

Tomasso wrote:

- > Of course in scholarship you "should" cover all original sources, but
- > typically only notables are included. To do that, you either go to
- > the library or pay a fortune in download fees.

Of course most real scientists have an affiliation with a university, laboratory, or corporation that subscribes to the major scientific journals, and can download articles from most journal websites without paying any additional fee.

Tom Roberts tjroberts@lucent.com