

Re: Relativity and FTL Travel FAQ

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.physics.relativity/2005-01/3284.html>

From: Raktizer Omheit (cequka_at_iprimus.com.au)

Date: 01/17/05

Date: Mon, 17 Jan 2005 15:47:45 +1100

"DavidBowman" <dt041054@yahoo.com> wrote in message news:1105923869.084639.3120@c13g2000cwb.googlegroups.com...
>> David Bowman, I confess that I have only been pretending to believe > in > synthetic telepathy and faster-than-light travel.
>
> That's okay; I've only been pretending to take you seriously
>
>> the National Security Agency and CIA are right when they say that > Father Christmas really does exist, but that he is not St. Nicholas.
>
> Thanks so much for 'splaining that to me! Now, when I wander around > the park waving my arms and talking to myself, I'll wrap aluminum foil > on my head so no crazy thoughts come into my mind.
> After all, it worked for you!

When did I ever say that my mind was being read, or that I ever wore an aluminum foil hat? Besides, I have often heard this claim that an aluminum foil hat can allegedly stop your mind being read. Where did this idea originate from?