

Re: Understanding SR – simultaneity

Source: <http://sci.tech–archive.net/Archive/sci.physics.relativity/2006–05/msg02376.html>

- From: "The Sorcerer" <vanquish@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sat, 27 May 2006 12:28:30 GMT
-

"Sue..." <suzysewnshow@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
news:1148727934.542230.56870@xx

|
| The Sorcerer wrote:
| > "Sue..." <suzysewnshow@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
| > news:1148680136.015015.278320@xx
| > |
| > | Nicolaas Vroom wrote:
| > | snip
| >
| > Wow... so many people who write snip.
| > It sure is a mighty powerful and convincing magic word.
| > Let me try it.
| > snip

|
| "nothing happens here"
| You are carrying:
| a lantern
| a dull sword
| a blue print for disappearing :o)

|
| <<Researchers have a blueprint for one like Harry Potter's
| Houston Chronicle, United States – 5 hours ago
| ... it invisible. "Is it science fiction? Well, it's theory and that
| already is not science fiction. It's theoretically possible to do all
| these Harry Potter things >>
| <http://news.google.com/news?hl=en&ned=&q=invisible+potter&btnG=Search+News>

|
| Sue...

Of course. Harry Potter is a wizard. We wizards never attempt impossible magic, we leave that to muggles.
Why, wizards have already recreated the queen's magic mirror.
Queenie:
"Mirror, Mirror, on the wall,
Who's the fairest of them all?"

The Mirror replies (in Stephen Hawking's voice)

Re: Understanding SR – simultaneity

"Snow White, you ugly old bat!"

and it whips up a view from a web cam looking into a little house deep in the forest to find Snow White in bed getting seven times more dick than Queenie ever got.

Einstein was better than Houdini, but he was still a muggle.

He almost succeeded in making the speed of light invisible, but wizards can see through his trick. Muggles can't.

Androcles — Great Sorcerer of Usenet, Headmaster of hogwarts.physics.