Or is it the case that, secretly, numbers of physicists really know that there is no real Minkowski spacetime, but are not able to admit it publicly?

The map is not the territory. We know this, you do not. Do not project your confusions upon physicists.

I do know it – and find it unsatisfactory. What I am not sure of is what physicists really know and will or will not admit. Harry's post appears to provide some illumination in this regard.
