

The Dirac–Kerr electron

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.physics.research/2007-08/msg00158.html>

- From: donjstevens@xxxxxxx
 - Date: Thu, 30 Aug 2007 05:37:17 +0000 (UTC)
-

The subject paper by Alexander Burinskii describes the electron as a naked singular ring (black hole). Critics have said this paper is flawed because a naked singular ring would violate the cosmic censorship hypothesis, though Roger Penrose has said that this hypothesis is as yet neither proved or refuted.

Question: Are there other reasons known that would lead to a conclusion that the Burinskii paper is flawed?