

Re: World energy system should be based on alcohol

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.physics/2004-11/0731.html>

---

From: Gregory L. Hansen (glhansen\_at\_steel.ucs.indiana.edu)

Date: 11/03/04

Date: Wed, 3 Nov 2004 14:47:22 +0000 (UTC)

In article <e4a0829b.0411021509.628c27af@posting.google.com>,

ZZBunker <zzbunker@netscape.net> wrote:

> The Ghost In The Machine <ewill@sirius.athghost7038suus.net> wrote in > message news:<65kk52-til.ln1@sirius.athghost7038suus.net>...

> And because it's the only gas that can make all of > helium, lithium, iron, oxygen, and plutonium brittle, it also

Yeah, we use a lot of helium, and helium embrittlement is really a problem.

--

"Experiments are the only means of knowledge at our disposal. The rest is poetry, imagination." -- Max Planck