80% of the worlds daily savings ($2.6 billion) finance the US current account deficit through useless junk bonds which the US will never pay back unless rampant inflation is implemented. When Gates + Buffet + Soros are all massively shorting the dollar (at a profit), for a reason. Remarkably, most people in the US are completely unaware of how tantalizingly close economic armageddon really is. It just will take one bad news story to trigger it all – like OPEC oil in euro's for example. The US stockmarket turns over most of its outstanding shares every month now which is a good indicator of long-term investor sentiment) or complete lack thereof. US Policy makers dismiss economic environment with naive beliefs that debt/gdp ratio's were worse in the 40's and 50's and thus current status quo is manageable and sustainable without realizing fundamental causes are totally different. A cursory look at gold pretty much gives this all away.
