Tut, tut. You are the ass kisser, Wormley. Not I. You continuously get on other people's case for not understanding SR and GR. The problem is that nobody really understands SR or GR. Nobody knows why clocks slow down and why rulers contract. Nobody understand why c is constant in all FORs. And nobody knows why Heisenberg's uncertainty principle exists.

Heck, nobody understood Newton's stuff either. You want to know why? Because it did not really explain anything. A velocity or a gravity equation does not explain why things move and why they fall. That, Mr. Butt-munch, is what people want to understand. They want to have a fundamental understanding. They are tired of people who keep on claiming that they are doing physics when in fact they are just math engineers.

But worse, some of the most famous physicists/scientists in the world are just as clueless WRT SR and GR as the rest of the population. You must include notorious crackpots like Kip "Wormhole" Thorne, Stephen Hawking, Kurt "Lunatic" Godel, Richard Feynmann & John Wheeler (advanced and retarded time-travelling waves), David "Quantum Computing" Deutsch, and many others on your list of people that are clueless.

Of course, you want to know why these illustrious cranks should be on your list, right? It's because they claim that GR does not forbid time travel in closed time-like curves. They do it even though anybody with two neurons between their ears understands that time cannot change because a changing time is self-referential.

And don't you dare deny it, Wormley. I got dozens of references to prove that they do in fact claim those things, not only in popular publications but in peer-reviewed journals as well.

The question is: why are these crackpots not on your list? Answer: the physics community (whose asses you kiss daily on this forum, protects its crackpots/con-artists the same way the Catholic Church protects its pederast/pedophile priests. It's all about chicken religion and control of mind share.

Physics can be so much more fun when we start identifying all the crackpots that have crept into it, don't you agree, Wormley? I am not talking about the usual cranks who really do no harm. I am talking about the real voodoo priests of the physics community who lead the sheep astray.

But to do that, one must stop kissing ass and grow a little bit of backbone.
