

Re: Thoughts on time and space

Source: <http://sci.tech--archive.net/Archive/sci.physics/2005-11/msg00154.html>

- From: "brodix" <brodix@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: 2 Nov 2005 18:56:53 -0800
-

Paul,

>You don't understand what a dimension is.

It seems to me that our principles and laws are approximations of reality, rather than the foundation on which it's based, so a dimension would be what the most people effectively agree that it is.

The origin of the concept is as a basic linear measure of space. This concept has since been expanded to include other conceptual parameters.

How would you describe a dimension?

.

- References:
 - ◆ Thoughts on time and space
 - ◇ From: brodix
- Prev by Date: Re: Thoughts on time and space
- Next by Date: Re: Thoughts on time and space
- Previous by thread: Re: Thoughts on time and space
- Next by thread: Re: Thoughts on time and space
- Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread