

Re: Electrons in the universe

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.physics/2006-02/msg00878.html>

- From: madscientist5500@xxxxxxxxxx
 - Date: 7 Feb 2006 13:49:39 -0800
-

Just one more question... what about the free electrons in the observable universe? These certainly count as non-baryonic yet they must be present somewhere. How can the number of free electrons can be estimated and included in the count? Thanks, again.

.