It's too bad the Spanish initially misidentified Mayard's fingerprint; that was a setback to the defense of the US. Other than that, I _hope_ the FBI is investigating guys like this; though of course, if they are pressured into stopping, we can always have another report showing how they dropped the ball in the wake of the next serious attack, if anybody is left to wring their hands after. If Mayard is an innocent and patriotic American, as he seems to claim, he would perhaps stop whining publically, and admit "Gee... I _do_ kind of look like the kind of guy who might be involved in this sort of thing, don't I".

It would have been criminally negligent for the FBI not to have him watched. They were, at least briefly, doing their job.

"Edward Green" makes a good point when he points out
"It would <be> criminally negligent for the FBI not to <watch potential war instigators carefully.>

As can be seen, after FDR died, and Truman became president, Americas did a 180 and began to watch the Jews who had been actively instigating the Class Wars, and Truman, Nixon, McCarthy, and Hoover, spearheaded a drive to neutralized the war-for-profit instigators.

It is interesting to see, that the very people who saved the American government from being taken over like Russian government was, have been aggressively demonized by the war-for-profit gang and their fellow travelers.

No doubt, the time as come for law enforcement to begin taking a closer look at "the kind of guys who might be involved in this sort of thing", and the front men who have sold out to the gang.

Re: The Pendulum Swings yet again....

and of course, the people who control media, like the New York Times, and Time Magazine, which were active in instigating the Spanish–American War, the Class Wars, and the Religious Wars, the Urban Rebellion, etc.

and the people in the news groups who work aggressively to con American Blacks, Latinos and Rednecks into sacrificing their lives, limbs, liberties and fortunes, to kill folks they could get along with just fine, in the absence of instigation.

If a mixture of oxygen and hydrogen explodes and kills a lot of people, and destroys property, the guy with the match should be blamed, not the oxygen and hydrogen.

As "Edward Green" suggests, law enforcement should spend their time finding out, and punishing the people who exploit the differences between people.

The way it is now, law enforcement would blame explosions on the chemicals, forest fires on the trees and the oxygen, etc.

The potential for conflict (Energy release) is, and will always be, there. What society should do is begin to take a HARD look at who is releasing the energy for the collective good, and who is releasing the energy for the collective bad.
