

Re: A few silly questions

Source: <http://sci.tech--archive.net/Archive/sci.physics/2007-02/msg03882.html>

- From: "David L. Burkhead" <dburkhead@xxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sun, 25 Feb 2007 19:18:01 -0500
-

Wayne Dobson wrote:

"David L. Burkhead" <dburkhead@xxxxxxx> wrote in message
news:FfadnYz57eoiY0PYnZ2dnUVZ_ragnZ2d@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

Wayne Dobson wrote:

"David L. Burkhead" <dburkhead@xxxxxxx> wrote in message
news:65mdncvODfrkRkPYnZ2dnUVZ_o6gnZ2d@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

Ok, but this whole thing is about a group of people trying to muffle free speech and that doesn't sit well with me.

Oh, bullshit. You think you're the only one with a right of
"free speech." People who disagree with you also have that right
in case
you didn't know.

David, you are a Borg. You are incapable of thinking for yourself.
Your thoughts are the thoughts of the collective. Your reality is constructed by others. Your mantra is: "assimilate or destroy."
You argue on the basis of outright--lies and revision. Your views are based on mindless conformity and self--deception. You are a fool.

Re: A few silly questions

And this relates to the statement above exactly how?

You can't be reasoned with.

Sure I can be. You've never tried. You just assert things as "fact" from a position of ignorance and expect everything to simply accede to your claim. And your response still has nothing to do with the statement that people who disagree with you have a right to free speech too.

If someone thinks you are spouting nonsense, they have a perfect right to say so.

Revision.

"You keep using that word. I do not think it means what you think it means."

Has someone just taught you to read? I must have been thinking of something else.

Oh, now what was a clever comeback. Complete non-sequitor and completely typical of your "argument" style, but . . . You know. I take that back. It wasn't a clever comeback. Just more meaningless verbal hemorrhage on your part.

Do you even own a dictionary? I didn't even say that the person had to be right. Just that they had to think you are spouting nonsense.

You are part of the collective. You don't think.

<yawn> Get a new playbook.

I
especially didn't like attempts find my home
address, to send

Re: A few silly questions

Re: A few silly questions

someone over.

Nah, you'd much rather insult others from the anonymity of usenet.

If you're looking for a friend, I'm not he. I'm not going to give you my address, nor my telephone number.

Big, tough, he-man.

Nah, flattery ain't gonna do it, either.

Get your sarcasm detector recalibrated.

Call me cranky.

"Paranoid" is a better term.

You must be one of those conspiracy theorists.

You're the one spouting paranoia.

Yeah, but my paranoia is archived.

This much is true. The fact that you are a paranoid lunatic is archived.

Google has conspired
with me to archive the threats I mentioned.

You keep invoking Google. The thing you need to remember is that Google
is not your friend since it also argues your nonsense.

You look stupid enough, without my having to Google up that fact that

Re: A few silly questions

Re: A few silly questions

you are either a liar or a lunatic.

As I said, Google is not your friend. Even your fellow Harry Potter fetishist has abandoned you.

But how would you know, you only raise your head up long enough to listen to the collective,
so that you can know what to parrot, before burying your head back
in your bird–seed.

You see, this is very typical of you. You can't deal with substance so you
fall back on insult.

That's because you are part of the collective. You can't be reasoned with. You understand insult, you don't understand reason.

You wouldn't know. You never use anything other than insult. And you certainly never use reason.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Psychological_projection

When the time comes where everyone on RMA is able to speak freely,
without being subjected to
insults,

Wah, wah, wah. Also the height of hypocrisy.

Haha... The irony.

Why yes, there is extraordinary irony in your complaining about
insults.
As I said, Google is not your friend.

If he's your friend, prove it.

Re: A few silly questions

Re: A few silly questions

Prove the irony of your complaining about insults? I don't even need Google for that. This very message makes a prima facie case.

threats, and spoiling tactics,
my
behaviour will also change.
Not before.

Yeah, yeah, yeah. You'll be nice and polite so long as everybody tiptoes around and at least pretends to agree with you,
no matter how egregious your comments.
Oh, yes, and so long as every claim you make is accepted without question and you are accepted to be the ultimate authority on even when you disagree with professionals in the field—either present or
by reference.

Nah, just not calling my mother a whore or issuing threats would go
most of the way. Mostly, y'all have gotten with the program.
Just
a few hard-heads left. I'm already much nicer than I was.

So now you're trying the "big lie" tactic? Google is not your friend.

What lie?

Pretty much any time you set fingers to keyboard, but in this case, the lie of the deep, dark conspiracy to silence you.

Ain't gonna happen.

It already has. I serve my own purposes, not whatever is conjured
up

Re: A few silly questions

in your imagination. Everything's going to plan.

Sure, Hannibal. You love it when a plan comes together.

I do.

Funny thing is, Hannibal was just about always being dragged away on a stretcher when uttering that line. The analogy should be obvious to the peanut gallery.

David L. Burkhead "Dum Vivimus Vivamus"
<mailto:dburkhead@xxxxxxx> "While we live, let us live."
My webcomic Cold Servings
<http://www.coldservings.com> -- Back from hiatus!
Updates Wednesdays