

Re: The galaxy is a zero point machine producing mass, energy and spawns new galaxies from vacuum energy.

Re: The galaxy is a zero point machine producing mass, energy and spawns new galaxies from vacuum energy.

---

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.physics/2007-03/msg02804.html>

---

- From: dan@ pixelphase.com
  - Date: Fri, 23 Mar 2007 20:41:26 GMT
-

On 23-Mar-2007, Sam Wormley <swormley1@xxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

-

Galaxy M32 is receding from Andromeda M31 so not all dwarf galaxies are being pulled in gravitationally.

If the dwarf galaxy is pulled and not repelled the magnetic repulsion of the main galaxy is temporarily decreasing, or the energy production of the dwarf galaxy around its central black hole is busted.

If one takes a survey of all "colliding" galaxies, statistically more galaxies should be receding than pulled together.

.

Re: The galaxy is a zero point machine producing mass, energy and spawns new galaxies from vacuum energy.