

Re: Usenet Servers going Anti-Truth/Faith-Based

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.physics/2007-05/msg00480.html>

- From: BradGuth <bradguth@xxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: 5 May 2007 14:14:00 -0700
-

Once again and again, of each and every time I take a look-see at whatever turns up with a public search of topics and replies by 'Brad Guth', and then using the GOOGLE "Sorted by date" function, whereas lo and behold, there's good old insider Fart Deco's original reply sticking itself on top of the usenet index stack, of what's clearly robo/insider usenet functioning as per usual, placing those pesky ulterior motivations and hidden agendas of others on top of the search stack, forcing the snookered and easily dumbfounded public and news media bozos to perceive that only his outdated robo reply is what matters. Of course, this silly brown-nosed and very Jewish clown tactic only proves that I'm right, and in far more ways than I've thus far discovered. Even "Phineas T Puddleduck" offers us another good example of a usenet rusemaster in action, as having been doing exactly what I've said from the very get-go, of topic/author stalking and having added their usual cesspool news group(s) in for good measure.

Besides the likes of mailgate.org being totally news obstructive, as otherwise being client specific filtered and/or as having so often excluded most all that rocks their public infomercial spewing boat, as further proof/evidence of these ulterior motives and hidden agendas imposed by those in charge of keeping their mainstream status quo lids on tight, and of that which keeps their grand ruse/sting of the century in full swing, I offer:

Discussion subject changed to "EVIDENCE: Re: Usenet Servers going Anti-Truth/Faith-Based" by Art Deco

These mainstream status quo rusemasters also pounced upon "How Did the Universe Survive the Big Bang?" as having been renamed a dozen times, and only worse off hijackings imposed upon my topics. See for yourself how many times an original topic gets hijacked by getting renamed and/or by way of getting dragged into cesspool groups of clowns taking an extra bite. Since Usenet insiders/controllers have intentionally provided this hijacking capability, and having sustained and even rewarded it usage, as their status quo norm of damage control, is why there's little chance of honest folks sharing much of anything that matters to the public that's not willing to filter out the gauntlet of mainstream flak that's without question far more faith-based and/or politically motivated than not.

Re: Usenet Servers going Anti-Truth/Faith-Based

Most topic renaming has been intentionally made so extensive that it totally obscures and/or skews whatever the original author intended. This clown tactic is not by any mistake, nor is it being addressed by those Usenet insiders capable of having prevented such actions by anyone other than the originating author (if even allowing that much).

I foolishly wish usenet folks (the good, the bad and the downright ugly) would stop such hijacking by way of their renaming these topics, as it's bad enough our having been topic/author stalked and bashed without our having to continually search for the original topic or otherwise having to deal with their special Usenet cesspool groups (such as alt.fan.art-bell and alt.usenet.kooks) that have nothing but ulterior motives and hidden agendas to offer.

These individuals or rather borg collectives of mostly Old Testament or some other faith-based and/or political skewed mindset continually claim as being total atheist and otherwise without any political or big business affiliations, but we all honestly know for a bloody fact that's a lie, and otherwise we know that these topic/author stalking folks are more or less official government spooks/moles or having been working on behalf of such without an honest speck of remorse, whereas most having been so dishonest that they simply do not exist as real people (more so as anti-truth and otherwise somewhat sleeper cell or cult worthy, I'd say).

Notice how your Usenet index of whatever's search/topic that's "Sort by relevance" (such as a search for: Brad Guth) and otherwise as "Sorted by date" are usually skewed far away from what's honestly the case, with typically a full page or more that's offering so much other orchestrated infomercial crapolla, that sticks no matters what else gets posted, as their insider stuff stays on top of that search index stack. In other words, usenet is very much humanly moderated in a highly biased favor of their having promoted and/or sustained whatever's their faith-based or political agenda of the day.

As far as I can tell, there's absolutely nothing fair or otherwise honest or even balanced about usenet, that is unless you're one of those that happen to think what the Third Reich had going was fair. If you're thinking or otherwise suggesting MI/NSA isn't a very big part of usenet, then you're either a bigger fool of a dumbfounded village idiot, or you're actually one of them.

—

Brad Guth

.