

Re: About God

---

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.physics/2008-03/msg00893.html>

---

- From: "Dirk Van de moortel" <dirkvandemoortel@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Mon, 10 Mar 2008 22:43:27 +0100
-

Peter <Poakfield@xxxxxxx> wrote in message bf704c16-1918-4ab9-af85-9c4945cf077e@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

On Mar 10, 5:25 pm, none <"doug\"@(none)"> wrote:

Peter wrote:

On Mar 10, 10:07 am, "Robert J. Kolker"
<bobkol...@xxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

Peter wrote:

God is a spirit. Science, which deals with matter and
material things,
is not the appropriate tool to investigate about things in the spiritual realm. The spiritual realm is clearly in a different dimension. We had no way to know about God if He had not revealed Himself. But there is ample historical evidence of His revelation.

There is not a crumb, not a scintilla of empirical evidence indicating that the immaterial spiritual God of Judaism, Christianity or Islam
exists.

From a purely empirical point of view, God is

Re: About God

a fairy tale. A myth. A boogeyman.

Which is why physics has nothing whatsoever to say about God.

Bob Kolker

Isn't it funny that more than two billion people, many of them
extremely talented and educated believe in something that does not exist?

So you are supporting a minority view not supported by over four billion people. You have been outvoted.– Hide quoted text –

– Show quoted text –

Most people believe in God, but some are a bit misinformed, but it does not matter, God takes care of them also.

We puke on him and he still takes care of us. What a dope :-)

Dirk Vdm

.