"The Einstein Hoax"

The Einstein Hoax was written to counter an intellectual "fast shuffle" which used Dr. Einstein's Special Relativity (which is easily seen to be a mathematical copy of the earlier Lorentz Transformations Aether Theory) to propagate the idea that our physical reality was too subtle to be understood by mortal men and could only be dealt with using sophisticated mathematics. This ploy served the academic community very well. The quote was made that Dr. Einstein's principle contribution was not Special Relativity but rather the showing that mathematics could be used to make advances in the physical sciences and "it was no longer necessary to wait for "the few great minds that arise in each century" to make progress. Since the availability of such intelligent men could not be expanded but mathematics can be taught to anyone, the approach not only made the physical sciences more mysterious, but allowed an unlimited expansion of the contributing scientific community.

The phenomena associated with both Special and General Relativity seem, to a large degree, to be incomprehensible and the conclusions contradictory. There is a simple reason for this. The explanations which are provided lead the mind to recognize inherent contradictions which are not apparent in the mathematics. Since the contradictions do not appear in the mathematics it was considered obvious that they did not exist! These contradictions have led to the continuous confusion appearing in the Newsgroups and elsewhere. The reality is that, when an expert(s) cannot explain his(their) knowledge to an intelligent layman (laymen), there can only be one explanation. The expert(s) do not actually understand their subject matter. IT IS NOT BECAUSE OF THE LIMITATIONS OF THE LAYMEN.

"The Einstein Hoax", <http://einsteinhoax.com/hoax.htm>, was written to provide an understanding of our physical reality which is in agreement with all known physical observations and mathematical logic and, most importantly, pass the "intelligent layman" test.
