

Re: Campaigning is a 'Science', too.

Re: Campaigning is a 'Science', too.

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.physics/2008-11/msg00057.html>

- From: NoEinstein <noeinstein@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sat, 1 Nov 2008 18:48:47 -0700 (PDT)
-

On Oct 29, 1:06 pm, NoEinstein <noeinst...@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

THE FINAL COUNTDOWN FOR AMERICA.

John King's magic wall, supposedly, is predicting how the election, Tuesday, will turn out. That crazy-quilt, colored map of the USA is based on the daily polls or play-by-play scores in CNN's 'Ballot Bowl'. The latter game of politics has put hundreds of millions of dollars into the pockets of the media bosses. Barack Obama using his unfulfillable promises as lures is expecting to BUY his way into the White House. His main redecoration of the Oval Office will be his preferred, un-American, Red-White-and BLACK flags. Are our citizens willing to abandon all hope & simply to vote for Obama?

Ask most middle class people this question: Which would you prefer: An inflationary handout from government; or & A non-inflationary improvement in the jobs and earnings opportunities for all Americans? Barack Obama likes to generalize that everyone in the middle class is destitute. But isn't that a bit of a stretch? If there was a soup line in your town, and all you had to do to get a bowl, would be to say that you are destitute, would 100% of the middle class get into that line? Not likely!

The majority of people in America have grandparents or great grandparents who survived the Great Depression. By doing so they emerged stronger people. FDR's public works projects building state parks, highways and bridges let people show their resolve to survive by doing hard work. For most of them, that work was probably unlike what they had been doing. The latter switching of jobs is a good hint how to survive: Be versatile!

All things being equal, most people would prefer to drive a big, high status car. And they would prefer to live in a large house in a fancy neighborhood. In recent more prosperous times, it was possible to do both of those things simply by getting a good job, then borrowing the necessary money. But the fulfillment of the American dream hinged on maintaining one's job and making the monthly payments. At the root of our present financial woes is the large amount of credit card and other debt which lenders have allowed borrowers to carry. Yes, the lenders goofed. But they did so to help fulfill the must-have-everything-now wishes of optimistic Americans, everywhere.

Re: Campaigning is a 'Science', too.

Re: Campaigning is a 'Science', too.

In the present election the voters may be wishing to punish the perceived haves for the woes of the have-nots. But rather than do that, the voters should withhold blame, and start helping to do the pragmatic things necessary to get this country back on track! Barack Obama's appeal is that he is angry with the establishment in Washington. Anger is at the root of his disturbed personality & In times of trouble, don't we need a President who is up-beat? Attitude is key. And Obama's attitude is morose &

To our credit 90 plus percent of Americans are dissatisfied with the direction that this country is headed. And THAT is one of the most positive things that has ever happened in this country! Why? Because our mutual dissatisfaction means that there is now enough unity of purpose to ratify my New Constitution, in 2010! Such will correct our governmental and economic problems once and for all! The USA is presently controlled by a horse-and-buggy era Constitution which has so many loopholes that Washington has evolved to be our taskmaster rather than our servant. My main objective has been to put the People at the top of the hierarchy! With democracy we all can win! Happy days are here again! Sounds pretty good, doesn't it!

Because of Obama's conscienceless character, and other flaws (His being Black isn't one of the latter.), I've vehemently opposed his remaining in this country, let alone becoming our next President! Love it or leave it, I say! When Obama stayed in Jeremiah Wright's Hate the USA congregation for 20 years, he disqualified himself to become President. And when Obama was buddy-buddy with bombers and fraudulent voter registrants, he disqualified himself to be President. And when Obama lamented that those in rural areas love their Bibles and their guns &, he disqualified himself to be President. And when Obama was disrespectful to Hillary Clinton who beat him in the popular vote, he disqualified himself to be President. And when Obama whose only executive experience was his having been a community organizer criticized Sarah Palin with his put lipstick on a pig remark, he disqualified himself to be President. And when Obama tries to legitimize himself by always standing in front of a red, white, and BLACK flag, he disqualifies himself to be President.

Obama's sole argument against McCain has been to over-sell guilt by association with Bush. But for Obama, there is guilt by association with himself! Barack Obama is a ruthless, self-centered, inexperienced, pedant! He has ZERO idea how to orchestrate others to do anything other than his own wishes! In the White House, Obama will dictate (like a dictator) everything which gets done. Adolph Hitler did that, too. And from day one, the USA will be mortally wounded...

Re: Campaigning is a 'Science', too.

Re: Campaigning is a 'Science', too.

McCain–Palin are playing up their own changes which will shake–up Washington . That doesn't mean: Going to fight for this or that program against a Congress which is controlled by the opposition party. How futile such fights would be! I've suggested that Palin shouldn't be sacrificed against the calcified wall that is Congress . The daily give–and–take between the House and the Senate cuts the efficiency of Congress in half&

The Senate got included as part of Congress simply because small states were afraid that large states would take advantage of them. Though such things never happened, the anti–democracy Senate has regularly screw–up–the–works. Under my New Constitution& The Senate can start doing their packing; and the country won't even be lacking! However, it will be two more years before the American People get their opportunity to kick–butt in Washington. But I predict that very positive things will start to happen well before then! The soon–to–be–outlawed political parties will become like lame ducks. Suddenly, instead of factions fighting factions, and bogging down everything as usual, there will be a new cooperation in Washington. Needed work will actually start being done, instead of just argued about! There could even start to be a Pay it forward for you and me today& attitude which could spread throughout this country!

Barack Obama's place in history should be just a short chapter about a snake–oil salesman who nearly destroyed our great nation. The youthful voters now supporting that tyrant will surely mature and wise up to become good Americans. Yes, those people would have lost the battle for the White House. But if they will think positive and hang around, they can be part of the VICTORY in our WAR to make this country great again and respected and liked throughout the world!

The last and best hope for America is to REJECT Barack Obama and support McCain–Palin! Those two won't be causing a Civil War. And they won't close their minds to this fact: GOVERNMENT ISN'T THE SOLUTION; GOVERNMENT IS THE PROBLEM!

Be it known: A New Constitution is the only change that we need!
Pass it on!

Respectfully submitted,

NoEinstein

Happy Days& !

http://groups.google.com/group/sci.physics/browse_thread/thread/9903367481ce7970/ae4338645fbefbf5?hl=en&lnk=

On Oct 24, 9:40 am, NoEinstein <noeinst...@xxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

Re: Campaigning is a 'Science', too.

OBAMA COMEDY AND TRAGEDY FOR AMERICA.

Most Americans are mass minded. When tragedy is threatening, they look around to see what other people are doing, then, they follow the throng. In the historic Coconut Grove Nightclub fire in Boston in 1942, 491 party goers lost their lives. Most of those were piled up, body-on-body at a blocked, inward opening exit door at the bottom of the same stairway those people had entered. A few clear thinking people survived. Rather than following the mindless throng, they went in the opposite direction. There was a large refrigerator with insulated walls and an air tight door. The people who took refuge in there, survived. The others did not.

America is presently stampeding to DISASTER with Barack Obama. Understandably, people are unhappy with their declining economic situations. Many feel helpless. And they are MAD. Barack Obama's campaign has hinged on getting as many unthinking Americans as possible to accept George W. Bush as the SCAPEGOAT for all of our problems. Clearly, Bush's getting us into two wars is bringing this country down, economically. But the majority of the blame for the wars, and our other built-in woes, rests with the God Damned US Congress! Please realize that for the past two years, both houses of Congress have been controlled by the Democrats.

Young people, who are most supportive of Obama, tend to be lured to any throng. As with sporting events, they choose sides. Politics is a game isn't it? The slime-ball media certainly thinks that politics is a game! But those people are no better than BOOKIES. The more the media can play up the game, the more money people will squander on the election. The BILLION dollar, buy-his-way-to-the-White-House, campaign of Barack Obama has been financed by those who have bet their last dollars that there will be a Big Payoff if Obama wins.

Obama is running for President by entitlement to placate his inferiority complex. The latter psychosis was brought on because his rebellious white mother violated a huge social taboo: She voluntarily allowed herself to become impregnated with a BURR HEAD'S child. Her decision was likely more influenced by the dangling dimensions of his anatomy, than by how, overall, genetically qualified that opportunist was. Though his white grandparents tried to make Obama feel accepted, they could never completely conceal their own shame. Nor could they protect him from the continual social ridicule which he had to endure.

The above scenario was very sad for Obama. But is Obama's SADNESS a justified entitlement to get that unqualified NIGGER elected to be President of the USA? If such a thing happens, the millions of obviously sad Blacks who now support Obama will feel that THEY are entitled, too. They'll be expecting that there be an intensified

Re: Campaigning is a 'Science', too.

AFFIRMATIVE ACTION program just to benefit them. If there are two equally qualified people for a job or for a scholarship, and one is a Black, those people will be expecting to come out on top most of the time. It wasn't right when Barack and Michelle Obama got their Harvard scholarships, and such things will never be right.

Is the USA prepared to have 90% of Blacks in America think that they are superior to whites in ANY arena other than sports? Is there proof of any kind that by their supporting Obama, his base of Black supporters manifests any worthiness, other than the fact that some of their numbers become great athletes or, perhaps, very funny stand-up comics? My personal belief is that the 10% of Blacks NOT supporting Barack Obama are, thereby, proving their superiority to other Blacks! And they are rightly proving their equality with whites. For those 10% of Blacks, race is no longer an issue!

When Colin Powell became a turn-coat and endorsed Obama, he wasn't doing so because Obama is Black. Right-wing, radio talk jockey, Rush Limbaugh, has attributed Powell's decision to racism. I, on the other hand, suspect Powell's decision is because of his lust for power. He is hoping to get another cabinet position, or perhaps to make a run for President, himself, one day.

In the past Colin Powell declined to run for President because he, in effect, values living. The high-and-the-mighty get & assassinated. The lowly, simply get & murdered. In the present cases, even one such tragedy would sink this country just as fast, or faster, than if the person assassinated had been allowed to live.

One way or the other, Barack Obama should be tried for TREASON. He has allowed his selfish entitlement-to-become-President to jeopardize the entire country and the world. Like the Pied Piper of Hamelin, Obama has found a powerful mantra: No more Bush & . Such mantra is getting his gang of LIMING supporters all lined up to jump to their deaths over the nearest cliff. But of course, they would have gotten the satisfaction of knowing that they & won, before they all proceed to jump. Afterward, this country & dies.

Independents, and those in battleground states, certainly must be enjoying all of the media attention. The failing economy is supposedly benefiting Obama. But why? He has ZERO background in economics. The likely reason for their support is: The people want a SCAPEGOAT. It is easier to blame George W. Bush than it is to blame congressmen whom they themselves elected. But didn't a majority of the people, also, elect Bush? Are any of those who voted for Bush placing blame on THEMSELVES for how things have turned out? In a similar way, are those who are for Obama, now, willing to place blame on themselves when his presidency, and the country fails? Probably not &

John McCain showed that he had personal constitution, when he chose to remain in that Hanoi prison rather than get privileged release because he was an admiral's son. McCain has a cheerful nature! Barack Obama, on the other hand, is sour natured&

Re: Campaigning is a 'Science', too.

Understandably, right now, most Americans are feeling& sour,too. But do we really want to elect a President who is a psychotic, ego manic, like Barack Obama? Or do we want to elect a President who has shown that he had enough personal fortitude and hope to survive his terrible ordeal while being held a prisoner of war? Don't you suppose that our adversaries throughout the world will RESPECT John McCain more than they could every respect that still-wet-behind-the-ears DUMBO, Barack Obama?

Those desperately wanting economic relief should vote in a way that at least has the potential for bringing economic relief. If Obama gets elected, the American People WON'T get the opportunity, in 2010, to vote for my New Constitution. However, if McCain-Palin get elected, my New Constitution is very much on-the-table! Such document contains: (1.) A powerful provision that will let the voters counter any unliked law or agreement. In a single day, the voters can repeal NAFTA, and that will be the final word. (2.) It contains a requirement that banks not discriminate in their lending practices. It outlaws the upping of interest rates after a borrower gets a loan. And it requires that the interest rates be identical for all borrowers for the same loan classification, without discrimination. (3.) It mandates that no business in this country can exploit the people and resources in poorer countries. The effect will be to stop the shipping of US jobs overseas, or to Mexico. (4.) It will stop the pollution of our environment, and the terrible associated costs in& diseases. (5.) It will increase the available money for funding startup businesses by setting limits on the amount of interest that can be paid on government guaranteed bonds. (6.) It will remove the authority of any government to raise taxes without at least a 60% assent of the voters. (7.) It sets an upper limit on both state and federal taxation without there first being an amendment to the New Constitution. (8.) It will eliminate the IRS from day one! (9.) It will relieve consumers from responsibility for paying for charges billed from fraudulent companies. Banks, like Chase, are making fortunes by allowing fraudulent businesses to continue, so that the banks can keep getting those transaction fees. (10.) Products like Readers Digest Books which are sent and billed, but which have to be returned if not wanted, become FREE upon arrival.

Another change of importance is the economy of everyone's TIME in no longer having to watch years long political games. The media will be forever PROHIBITED from polling about, commenting on, or assessing any race for public office! However, the media can cover events as-they-happen. There just won't be any more Candy Crowleys explaining what is going on, nor speculating about the implications. CNN's John King, and most of his crew, will be out of a job after 2010. It is good that he knows how to tend bars, because THAT is what he will be doing in the future!

Re: Campaigning is a 'Science', too.

As Obama continues to take his supporters for granted, consider that every vote for that Anti-Christ of the Human Race is a vote to take America on a tragic course. A billion plus dollars spent on Obama's candidacy doesn't legitimize a PITTIFUL little burr-headed boy with a complex! The only votes that count are those on ELECTION DAY! So, please consider your votes VERY carefully!

The last and best hope for America is to REJECT Barack Obama and support McCain-Palin! Those two won't be causing a Civil War. And they won't close their minds to this fact: GOVERNMENT ISN'T THE SOLUTION; GOVERNMENT IS THE PROBLEM!

Be it known: A New Constitution is the only change that we need!
Pass it on!

Respectfully submitted,

NoEinstein

Happy Days & ! ...

read more »