

sci.space.history: Re: What was the biggest problem for each of the 2 destroyed US space shuttles?

Re: What was the biggest problem for each of the 2 destroyed US space shuttles?

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.space.history/2004-09/1184.html>

From: rk (stellare_at_nospamplease.comcast.net)

Date: 09/12/04

Date: Sat, 11 Sep 2004 22:05:53 -0500

Jay Windley wrote:

>
> "rk" <stellare@NOSPAMPLEASE.erols.com> wrote in message
> news:Xns955B6C28F9022rk@199.184.165.239...
>|
>| Ok, thanks, I've just been skimming lately and reading here and there,
>| very busy.
>
> OM doesn't speak for me.

Of course not. You speak for you.

> I'd love to discuss the details of the Challenger > accident with you at your leisure, at whatever level of detail you wish.
> But please do me the courtesy of reading my statements in their entirety > before drawing your conclusions.

I did read your statements in their entirety. I just chose not to respond to the whole long post.

> I'll be happy to clarify my opinion.

The engineers and even some of the key managers were ignored for Challenger. Period.

--
rk, Just an OldEngineer
"Engineers abhor extrapolation"
-- Ken Iliff, from _Runway to Orbit_, 2004