

Re: Is Virgin Galactic for Real?

Source: <http://sci.tech--archive.net/Archive/sci.space.history/2006-01/msg00507.html>

- From: "Greg D. Moore \ (Strider\)" <mooregr_deleteth1s@xxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Sun, 08 Jan 2006 00:45:01 GMT
-

"Russell Wallace" <russell.no.spam@xxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
news:ApXvf.4211\$j7.93892@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

> Greg D. Moore (Strider) wrote:

- >> Hmm, at least one article I've read on this seems to indicate that
- >> supplemental oxygen helps far less than originally thought. Mostly
- >> because
- >> people on it tend to prolong time at altitude which increases their
- >> brain
- >> damage. But I can't find that one.
- >
- > I don't get that – if the problem is lack of oxygen, how would
- > supplemental oxygen not completely solve it?

Because they are not always continuously breathing it. (bringing enough O2 to be on it only during the hike adds up fast). So often they tend to use it for short stretches.

I'd have to look up the details, but I think Into Thin Air discusses this a bit.

- >
- > --
- > "Always look on the bright side of life."
- > To reply by email, replace no.spam with my last name.

• References:

- ◆ Is Virgin Galactic for Real?
◇ From: Von Fourche
- ◆ Re: Is Virgin Galactic for Real?
◇ From: Pat Flannery
- ◆ Re: Is Virgin Galactic for Real?
◇ From: Brian Heil

Re: Is Virgin Galactic for Real?

- ◆ Re: Is Virgin Galactic for Real?
 ◇ From: Pat Flannery
- ◆ Re: Is Virgin Galactic for Real?
 ◇ From: Henry Spencer
- ◆ Re: Is Virgin Galactic for Real?
 ◇ From: Greg D. Moore \((Strider\)
- ◆ Re: Is Virgin Galactic for Real?