Chuck, I am still puzzled how you converted that link to something that allowed you do download the actual wmv files. I copied your link below, changed the "mms" to "http"...

You weren't quite paying enough attention :)

It's not an http protocol.

It is the mms protocol.

(insert various obscene suggestions for that acronym)

It's microsoft proprietary crap.

What I meant in the post was that you need an application that understands the protocol.

In Linux mPlayer and Kaffeine are two examples. OM mentioned a Windoze app that does the same: "Streaming Download Project."

(Period concluding entire paragraph should be included in quotes, right? But what about my beloved ellipses?... :)

Don't know about Macs.
