

Re: Chandra leftovers and Shuttle-launch views

---

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.space.history/2006-08/msg00559.html>

---

- From: Herb Schaltegger <herb.schaltegger@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Thu, 20 Jul 2006 11:20:22 -0500
-

On Thu, 20 Jul 2006 11:01:49 -0500, William C. Keel wrote
(in article <44bfa8ed$1@xxxxxxxxxxx>):

I just learned this interesting tidbit of hardware recycling:

(snipped)

You never know when old parts will come in handy. It's a good thing nobody in procurement suggested they put the glass up on eBay...

Bill Keel

That's a very cool bit of information, Bill. For that matter, I didn't even know Marshall HAD a space optics facility.

On a tangential note, too bad no one ever scrounged around the rocket parks there and put together a working Saturn V. ;-)

--
Herb

"Everything is controlled by a small evil group to which, unfortunately, no one we know belongs."
~Anonymous

.