

Re: Fusion vs. SSP (Lyndon LaRouche)

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.space.policy/2004-06/1152.html>

From: James Nicoll (jdnicoll_at_panix.com)

Date: 06/14/04

Date: 14 Jun 2004 11:13:25 -0400

In article <7abfe569.0406140702.16a567c1@posting.google.com>, ralph gibbons <ralphgibbons@my-deja.com> wrote:
>gherbert@gw.retro.com (George William Herbert) wrote in message news:<cafp01\$2i4\$I@gw.retro.com>...
>> ralph gibbons <ralphgibbons@my-deja.com> wrote:
>> >> "Dick Morris" <richard.a.morris@boeing.com> wrote:
>> >>
>> >> > "Lyndon LaRouche"
>> >>
>> >> isn't he the one who thought the Queen of England was controlling the world >> >> heroin trade?
>> >
>> >Ah, the power of gossip. No, Virginia, LaRouche didn't think that, nor >> >did he say it. It was a fake quote, fabricated by Mark Nykanen ( >> ><http://www.marknykanen.com>), who at the time, which was 1980, was a >> >telejournalist for NBC. Most of the nonsense that people repeat about >> >LaRouche has similar origins.
>>
>> I then suppose that the flyer stating among other things >> exactly that (Queen Elizabeth/Heroin trade), which I was >> passed by a LaRouche for President volunteer on Sproul Plaza >> at UC Berkeley lo these many years ago, was also a fabricated plant?
>> I still have it somewhere, in my "kooky things I collected in college" >> box, in which it is unfortunately nowhere near the worst momento.
>
>I don't know, but I'm curious. Why don't you go into your Kooky Things >box and find the flyer, and post the contents as a reply to this post.
>Then I'll let you know. I wouldn't rule out the possibility that your >failing Baby Boomer memory, compounded by whatever damage was done to >you at Berkeley, may be playing tricks on you.

Speaking of interesting relics, I pulled out my grade 13 calculus text to take a break from reading work-stuff, and to see if there was any hope of me recovering my knowledge of calculus, and a flyer from the 1980 Canadian election for the Libertarian Party fell out. Aside from the fact that some miscreant has drawn muttonchops on the candidate, the flyer is aging (as a physical object — the Libertarians have slightly less presence in Federal Politics than the SoCredits) rather well.

sci.space.policy: Re: Fusion vs. SSP (Lyndon LaRouche)

James Nicoll

--

"The keywords for tonight are Caution and Flammability."

JFK, _Bubba Ho Tep_