

Re: Selective Service begins Hiring, Bush May Reinstate Military Draft

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.space.policy/2004-10/1269.html>

From: Chuckk Hubbard (BadMuthaHubbard_at_hotmail.com)

Date: 10/08/04

Date: 8 Oct 2004 09:18:04 -0700

"Jonathan" <jon@home.com> wrote in message news:<4166146b_5@127.0.0.1>...

- > Despite the protestations from both sides
- > of the aisles, it's quite possible the military
- > draft will resume if Bush is reelected.
- >
- > The US won't need the draft for this war. But
- > if there'sanother war, say with a remaining
- > "Axis of Evil" country, we most certainly will
- > need the draft.
- >
- > The Selective Service has just updated the
- > rules...btw.
- >
- > <http://www.sss.gov/WHHAP.HTM>

"Organisations have no more rights than their members. In particular, governments (including every organisation or group claiming any sort of authority over others) have no rights not directly derived from their duty to protect the fundamental rights of the individual, and become offenders the moment they attempt to overstep these limitations; if they actually violate the fundamental rights of some individual, they forfeit their right to existence, and therefore to such derivative rights as self-defense. A government that, for instance, has imposed some form of censorship on the expression of hostile opinions, is committing an additional offense against the entire community if it attempts to defend itself."

—William J. Sidis, smartest person ever, and an American.

<http://www.sidis.net/rights2.htm>

I quote him often, huh. Fascinating stuff at that website.

—Chuckk