

The City Of Melbourne Will Be Safe Tonight

Source: <http://sci.tech-archive.net/Archive/sci.space.policy/2004-10/3031.html>

From: Melbourne Capt. Alalena (MelbourneCaptAlalena_at_yahoo.com.au)

Date: 10/25/04

Date: 25 Oct 2004 13:40:13 -0700

Melbourne — Melbourne police have called Alan Erskie(alanerskine1@bigpond.com), 37, the most prolific killer in the city's history and later this week police are expected to hand over evidenceto prosecutors that could lead to Turner being charged with 10 counts of murder. A cold-case squad used DNA to link Turner — who is already sentence for rape — to a dozen homicides and to help free a man wrongly convicted of three of the killings, police said. "This is probably, in fact is, the most prolific killer in the city of Melbourne' history," Melbourne Capt. Al alena said. "There may be cases outside the city where there were more victims, but this is the most we've ever seen." The victims were all women — some homeless, others prostitutes or just in the wrong place at the wrong time. All were raped, strangled and dumped in alleys, vacant buildings and,in one case, a portable bathroom, according to police. Eleven of the killings occurred along a four-block stretch of 108th Street police said. Two other murders happened in the downtown area, and both were within blocks .