Within the past 4+ decades, it seems they haven't even established hard-science worth of proof-positive about the likes of raw H2O/ice or that of CO2/ice as having to survive in space.

What makes you think the ISS team is ever going to allow other truths about life in space to become known?

They still do not offer an external UV spectrum sensitive (0.0003 lux) CCD camera that's capable of looking at anything that's passing by or headed to/from Earth.

Besides the ongoing grand hoax of a perpetrated cold-war ruse/sting of the century, there's so much more having been uncovered about our moon and especially that of Venus.

Obviously their MI5/NSA(MI6) GOOGLE damage control post effort of those pathetic "moon maps" that aren't even accommodating 10% the available raw resolution of our own archived Apollo photographic evidence as having been obtained at least robotically from orbiting the moon, thus it isn't working any better off than were those stealth/invisible WMD as for justifying the ongoing collateral damage and carnage of the innocent.

If you're even allowed to be thinking ET positive, as in freely thinking the least bit outside of the mainstream borg status quo box; as such you might check out and contribute into either of the following topics, or start up another topic as extracted from my new and improved topic list <gv-topics.htm>.

Life upon Venus offers energy to burn within a Township, Bridge and ET/UFO Park-n-Ride Tarmac:

Venus ETs, Earthly ETs plus another updated topic list; Brad Guth / GASA-IEIS

The intentions of this continuing rant is besides if not in spite of our NOT having walked upon the moon; There has nearly always been other significant life that's perfectly capable of their having been situated upon Venus (at least on behalf of accommodating ETs), and otherwise of that little issue about our moon that's actually perfectly good for so many things once the LSE-CM/ISS is up and running and of sufficient robotics having been efficiently and safely deployed, as for those items functioning on behalf of science, clean energy and for the very salvation of humanity. Unlike what we've been told over and over by all of those folks supposedly having 'the right stuff', there's nothing the least bit insignificant nor without good if not of essential cause and rewards pertaining to our moon, and unlike those opposing absolutely anything and everything that represents change, I simply can't hardly think of anything but positive thoughts about our moon as well as for Venus as being yet another perfectly good thing for the greater salvation of Earth and advancement of humanity. How can anything pertaining to our moon or that of Venus become such a taboo/nondisclosure negative that which such topic/authors deserve getting stalked, bashed and/or banished?
