

PING William Mook and Scott Lowther

---

Source: <http://sci.tech--archive.net/Archive/sci.space.policy/2007-01/msg01101.html>

---

- From: "Bill Haught -- IF YOU SEE A HAUGHTY COMMUNIST HUN IN A HEIßLUFTBALLONE, CALL ON THE OFFICE OF FATHERLAND SECRECY" <wlhaughttooth@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx>
  - Date: Sat, 27 Jan 2007 00:17:51 GMT
-

in\_news:1169365879.243487.287810@xx

Scott Lowther made the phosphors in my monitor glow in a way as to indicate that

Yes, because the one thing that extremely tall buildings really need to have to become feasible is roadways built onto their sides and suspended between 'em, and thousands of car-mass objects zipping around 'em.

How about personal rapid transit (PRT) LOTS of LINKS v1.0 Rev 1

<http://groups.google.com/group/sci.space.policy/msg/9d5427be4ddc7359?dmode=source&hl=en>

or

news:rKwuh.66578\$Q4.6943@xx

.