On Sun, 24 Feb 2008 03:46:17 -0800 (PST), in a place far, far away, Ian Parker <ianparker2@xxxxxxxxxx> made the phosphor on my monitor glow in such a way as to indicate that:

No they haven't. Besides, I've been here right along. I know what the reality was and it was nothing like you claim at all.

When did you EVER have a point, Ian?

Well here is the thread and the message.

He appears to have done it again to someone else.

Message 342.

I must say that when I first read the message I did not realize that Rand had a track record. Had I, I would have come to different conclusions. The fact of the matter is that just before that message I was having a conversation with someone of Middle Eastern origin. We were talking in essence about victimless crimes in general. The age of consent came up. I suggested it should be 12. You need to have some limit but I basically do not believe that the behaviour of teenagers should be criminalized. Moreover the BMA advocates cervical cancer vaccination at about that age, having laws effectively means less medical supervision.

My first thought was that he had got access to personal conversations, possibly through a Middle East desk. To me the personality of Rand is something to fantasise about!

Boy, you can say that again. It seems to be your major preoccupation. I just wish that you wouldn't share your fantasies with the world.
