Yeah, I know what you mean. That photo was taken from just outside my office, to which a SWATter had paid a brief visit just a bit earlier ("just checking on which way you're pointing your bazooka" – no, really, his words).

I wonder if anyone gives any thought to the fact that these astro-people drive home from work every day without armed coverage? So why, then, do they feel the need for a strong armed presence within the confines of a secured facility?
